

Harrison Constructions were responsible for the major renovation and reconditioning of our Queenslander, "Koorboora". We are delighted with the finished product and found the process to be timely, the people at Harrison Constructions friendly and helpful, and the costs to be within budget. An excellent overall result.

The house itself is over 100 years old and had not had any work done on it for more than 30 years. Michael and his team worked with us to identify the key features of the renovation to follow, all within the context of preserving the fundamental nature of the classic "Queenslander". One key result was that we were able to expand the liveable indoor area by almost 40 percent, without changing the facade of the home.

Harrison Constructions also did major restoration and renovation to the original upstairs living areas and bedrooms. The result has pleased us immensely.

The work done on extending the main bedroom and adding a large bathroom plus walk-in-robe is very well crafted and finished, and is consistent with the style of the rest of the house. He has worked around the various limitations involved with working on such an old house with subtle finishes which we now appreciate every day.

Michael and his team also worked on the main living areas of the house - the dining and kitchen areas. Although not a lot of structural work was done here, the polished floors, new windows and painting are all first class and have brought colour and life to what were quite lifeless rooms.

In summary, it was a pleasure to work with Michael's polite and friendly team, we had no disputes over product or price, the finished product pleases us every day, and my wife and I would have no hesitation to wholehearted recommend Harrison Constructions for similar work.

Best regards,

Mark McGuire
